Plan Revision or Re-Approval

Each formal plan revision after approval or during construction shall require a plan revision fee. What constitutes only a minor red-line change to the plan is at the discretion of the District Engineer. After expiration of the water plan after one year with no construction permit being issued, this fee also applies to a one-time re-approval of the plan. If no construction permit is issued within two years of the original approval, a new submittal is required.
